INTRODUCTION

In Sweden, an organisation named University Admissions is responsible for handling the masters' application process.

You select a maximum of 4 programmes in the same university or different universities and rank them according to an order of priority of your own choosing. All Master's applications (except for Stockholm School of Economics) in Sweden are done on this website.

You can find their website here.

REQUIREMENTS

The General requirements to apply for masters in Sweden include:

1. International passport/National ID card,
2. Degree certificate
3. Transcript
4. Proof of English Proficiency
5. Application fee of SEK 900, which is about $86

With one application fee (SEK 900), you're allowed to apply for 4 Master's programmes.

There are also programme-specific requirements which can be demanded by your prospective programmes.

This can include Motivation letter/SOP, reference letter, academic writings, etc. You'll find information about other requirements specific to each course on each university website.

Not all universities ask for these specific documents for their admission. If your prospective programme didn't provide any specific requirements, then the general entry documents are enough to apply.

APPLICATION TIMELINE

There are two application timelines: the Autumn and Spring rounds. However, International students are advised to apply for the Autumn rounds because of the following reasons:

1. Fewer programmes are available in the spring semester. Most Master's programmes in Sweden start in the autumn semester.
2. No scholarships are available in the Spring semester.

The table below was the timeline used in the last application. You can always find the timeline for the current rounds of applications here.

APPLICATION TIMELINE

Level of study	Application round opens	Application deadline + last day to rank your courses	Application fee deadline	Supporting documentation deadline	Admissions results published	Autumn semester starts

LIVING EXPENSES AS A STUDENT

Monthly budget for the average single student in Sweden:

- Food: SEK 2 300
- Accommodation: SEK 3 600–5 200
- Course literature: SEK 400–1 000
- Miscellaneous expenses including clothing, mobile phone, leisure, etc: SEK 1 500

WORKING WHILE STUDYING

No restriction on number of hours you can work while studying. So, you can work for as many hours as you want, but ensure this doesn't affect your studies.

No minimum wage declared by law, but part-time jobs in Sweden can pay up to 10,000 SEK ($800) per month for international students.

WORK AFTER STUDIES

The Swedish government has a policy that allows international students who just finished their studies in Sweden to remain in Sweden for 12 months after studies to look for a job or start a business.

If you get a job within that period, you apply for a work permit. If you don't get a job within that period, you'll have to leave Sweden. But 12 months is enough time to get a job anywhere in the world.

RELOCATING WITH FAMILY

You can come along with your family to Sweden, but you have to show proof of funds for the upkeep of the other family members before they can be granted their visas.

For your spouse, you need to show proof of funds of at least SEK 47,092.50 (about $5000) for the first 13 months. Your spouse is also allowed to work while you study.

For each child, you need to show proof of funds of at least SEK 28,255.50 (about $3000) for the first 13 months.
